

Scienxt Journal of English Language & Literature
Volume-2 || Issue-1 || Jan-June || Year-2024 || pp. 43-54

Journeys of the displaced: A comprehensive exploration of diasporic literature

Mr. N. Mannarsamy

Assistant Professor and Head, Department of English, Government Arts and Science College, Thirukovilur, Kallakurichi District. Tamilnadu, India

*Corresponding Author: Mr. N. Mannarsamy
Email: nmsamy77@gmail.com

Abstract:

Diasporic literature is a rich and diverse genre that explores the experiences of individuals and communities displaced from their homelands due to various historical, political, economic, or social reasons. This paper provides an extensive analysis of diasporic literature, tracing its historical roots, examining key themes, and delving into the ways in which it captures the complexities of identity, belonging, and cultural adaptation. By exploring a range of diasporic texts from different regions and time periods, this paper aims to illuminate the unique narratives that emerge from the diasporic experience, highlighting the ways in which literature becomes a powerful tool for expressing and understanding the challenges and triumphs of those who navigate the complexities of displacement.

Keywords:

Displacement, Complexities of Identity, Cultural Adaptation